Theresa Taylor of South Lancaster is off to the Royal Winter Fair. Just call her Ambassador Theresa since she promotes her profession and the area where she works.

At the request of the Association of Auctioneers of Ontario, Theresa, will be Wednesday's Ambassador representing the female part of the industry. At centre Ring she will speak about the auction industry and of her own experiences in Glengarry. After a demonstration Theresa says that a young male and female will be chosen to give this art a try.

Theresa's passion for her work should be obvious in her live demonstration, as well as in the many interesting stories about her experiences.

I haven't talked with Theresa for a while and my latest conversation reminded me what an interesting life she leads, with nary a dull moment.

Theresa is also well known for using her talent to provide continuing support for the Children's Treatment Centre and the Snowsuit Fund, and for many local causes. Have fun Theresa!
