

Why hire a Professional Auctioneer?

When a business chooses to hire a new employee, they will seek out the best, most experienced and dedicated individual to fill the position. You would want the same from your auctioneer. Theresa Taylor Auctioneering offers a level of expertise and competency that can only come from years of experience. One of their numerous satisfied customers was quoted saying “Before promotion and marketing, before charm and knowledge, before a good voice, and a great head for numbers, an auctioneer first builds their business by reputation - here, Theresa shines”.

They achieve this with:

- pride in what they do, but most importantly taking care of you: their customer
- offering courteous service, but above all honesty in what they can deliver
- over 14 years of experience in the field of estate sales and auctions
- they have experts in all categories of antiques and collectibles (coins, gold, furniture, memorabilia, etc.)
- Theresa Taylor Auctions utilizes their expertise to entertain and to energize attendees, ensuring the best possible sales results. The auctions are “fun” and have a professional touch. They hold auctions and estate sales, and regularly host “We Buy Gold and Coins” events in Cornwall and the SD&G area.

When you entrust Theresa Taylor with your business, you are not just getting an auctioneering service;

- you also get a company who cares about the community they reside in: from school fundraisers to Christmas basket programs, they always give back
- Theresa Taylor is highly honoured and recognized for her work in the auction industry by local, national and international associations
- she is extremely knowledgeable and in-tune with today’s trends and online marketing
